WHS ARTS, MUSIC & THEATER

GREETINGS FROM THE WHS MUSIC DEPARTMENT

I am happy to share that the WHS Music Department successfully completed its quadrennial performance trip to Disney World at the end of the vacation week.

Disney has strict performance requirements in terms of quality of ensemble, professional appearance, repertoire, etc. In order to be allowed to perform on their properties, each group had to submit an audition tape to Disney Performing Arts. We traveled to Orlando with 175 student performers - marching band, chorus and orchestra.

Marching Band paraded down Main Street in the Magic Kingdom; our orchestra presented a concert on the main stage in Disney Springs; and the chorus participated in workshops with Disney personnel to record the vocal soundtrack to parts of the Lion King!

Despite the long and steamy days, our students performed beautifully - we are so proud of their preparation and hard work. In addition to the wonderful work of our student ensembles, we could not do this trip without a terrific team behind the scenes.

Thanks to Laurel Anthony, Peter Rowe and Sheryl Stein who helped process the grants and payments.

A huge shoutout of thanks to our nurses Jen Markham and Lauren Vaccari. They worked through over 175 medical forms, contacted parents with any concerns and met with dozens of students to ensure that all would be well during the trip. We were well-prepared and incident free!!!

Our chaperone team was second to none. These are long days that started at 2:30 AM on Saturday and ended at 2:30 AM Wednesday.

I can't thank them enough for their energy, positive attitude, consistency and willingness to give up their time in order to make this a successful trip.

With great appreciation to current and former WHS Faculty and staff -Craig MacKenzie, Michelle White, Melissa Peduto, Jack Squeglia, Dan Perenick, Sami Goldberg and Nick Costello. Non-WHS chaperones included Sally Squeglia, Sara Wenzel, Ashley Bianchi and Michael Galvin. You are the best!

SPECIAL THANKS to the wonderful organizations in Winchester that helped defray the cost of the trip for our students. We want to recognize the amazing generosity of the EnKa Society, The Rotary Club, The John and Mary Murphy Foundation and the Winchester Public Schools' Friends of Music!

Athletes & Eating Disorders

Russell Kennedy, Ph.D,
Walden Behavioral Care

May 17 @ 6:30 pm
WHS Library Media Center

Athletics are a great way to build self-esteem, promote physical conditioning, and demonstrate the value of teamwork, but not all athletic stressors are positive. The pressure to win and an emphasis on body weight and shape can create a toxic combination. Athletic competition can also be a factor contributing to severe psychological and physical stress. When the pressures of athletic competition are added to an existing cultural emphasis on thinness, the risks increase for athletes to develop disordered eating.

In a study of Division 1 NCAA athletes, over one-third of female athletes reported attitudes and symptoms placing them at risk for anorexia nervosa. Though most athletes with eating disorders are female, male athletes are also at risk—especially those competing in sports that tend to place an emphasis on the athlete's diet, appearance, size, and weight requirements, such as wrestling, bodybuilding, crew, and running.

Dr. Russ (he/him/his) was an all-around gymnast for Syracuse University and has been coaching gymnasts and cheerleaders for the past 30 years. Outside of Walden, Dr. Russ works as a coach, lecturer and advisor for performance athletes, teams and governing bodies on eating disorders, disordered eating, sports psychology, peak performance, and leadership.
